FALSE ALARMS.

On Monday evening the city was thrown into alarm by the news that the troops had suddenly been ordered out to the frontier. The alarm was given as a preparatory to a state of siege, and the wildest rumors were circulated on the subject. We cannot, however, too highly applaud the action of the War Office, in the present case, in not allowing the alarm to be based upon any ground of suspicion. You may re-

MAR DEL PLATA.

(An extract from a letter to a friend in England.)

In our holiday "G" and I decided to go to Mar del Plata, which is the Argentine "Brighton." It is situated on the east coast of the Republic and is a night's journey from Buenos Ayres.

The country all the way down is quite flat—not a hill or rising ground to be seen until you get close to Mar del Plata, where a low range of sandstone hills rises from the sea.

The place itself is a very modern town, and is now a great resort for the garment of the sea. It is situated on the east coast of the Republic and is a night's journey from Buenos Ayres.
